Iraq conflict hits home Former soldier fears bloodshed

By Don Staruk

A 1980 Andover High School graduate who spent three years in the Army's 82nd Airborne Division said Wednesday he feels bad for his former comrades who were sent to Saudi Arabia this week.

"I think there's going to be some serious bloodshed involved," John S. Catalano said Wednesday morning. "They don't send those guys out unless they expect something to happen."

Mr. Catalano, of 29 Sutherland St., went straight into the Army after graduation and served with the 82nd from 1983 to 1985. Recently graduated from Northeastern University, Mr. Catalano is living at home in Andover while looking for a job.

Being unemployed and at home has given Mr. Catalano a chance to keep a close eye on the military actions in the Middle East in the past week.

"The only people that really know what's going on are the people at the Pentagon and the people in the units," Mr. Catalano said.

He was in the 82nd Airborne when much of that force was involved in the Granada invasion. Although his unit did not go to Granada, he had a first-hand view of what happens during such an invasion.

He believes his unit is now in Saudi

Board stays clear of library issue

The Board of Selectmen Monday night refused to intervene in the library access issue. Instead, they opted to let stand the policy restricting sixth-graders and younger from free run of the library pending a library trustees meeting in September.

The library has a policy restricting sixth grade and younger students to a children's room unless they have a parental escort or permission from a librarian to use the rest of the library.

Several children and some parents are challenging the restriction as discriminatory

Selling our water Is it wise to sell to North Reading?

By Don Staruk

Two months after Andover residents voted to sell water to North Reading any pending contract deal is still bogged down in administrative red tape.

Residents voted at Town Meeting in June to allow selectmen to negotiate a contract to sell water to North Reading. But the state has yet to approve the action, according to Buzz Stapczynski, town manager.

"We need the approval from the Department of Environmental Protection on the interbasin transfer," Mr. Stapczynski said. "We're waiting for the process to work itself through the system."

An interbasin transfer is the piping of water from one watershed to another. In this case, water from Andover, in the Merrimack River watershed, would be transferred to North Reading, which is in the Ipswich River basin.

North Reading has applied

It's show time at the Collins Center

By Lisa A. Boudreau

The show must go on at the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts on Shawsheen Road.

Following some very tough times – the resignation of center director Bruce Coppock and disclosure of a $150,000 debt – the Andover Endowment for the Arts has rallied and put together a diverse season of performances.

The AEA is the non-profit group that oversees the Collins Center for the town. Through an aggressive mailing campaign the AEA has raised more than $6,000 to date

Student yearns to return to Paris

By Lisa A. Boudreau

Michael Coco, 11 Standish Circle, has been back in Andover from a year's study and travel abroad for only a few weeks but already he yearns to return to Europe.

He speaks longingly of the time he spent living in a small apartment in Paris, the afternoons he and his new friends talked for hours in open-air cafes and the wonders of witnessing emerging democracies in Eastern Europe.

The last 12 months were an incredible year for Mr. Coco, a senior at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. He participated in an exchange program between his ## Calling all twins!

Everyone knows that twins are twice as nice. Or are they? Could they be double the trouble? We will let you, the readers, decide about that.

The Townsman wants to take a photo of all the twins in Andover. Think of it as this community's twins' portrait.

The Townsman invites twins, young and old, middle years, too, to meet in The Park by the gazebo, on Bartlett Street, Saturday, Aug. 25, at 11 a.m., for a group photo. If possible, call the Townsman at 475-1943 and let us know you're coming. If you're not sure and have to wait until the last minute to decide, fine, just arrive at The Park. We'll be glad to include you in the photo.

TOWNTALK

Pam Green of 6 Tallyho Lane told us she and her family enjoyed their visiting Spanish student, Elena, who is 18 and is from Alincante, Spain. The Greens, a family that consists of Pam, Jack and children Carrie, 14, and Marla, 18, were one of about 20 families here that hosted Spanish students who left for home late last week. Pam told us that Elena's English improved tremendously.

"Our family learned a lot," said Ms. Green, who worked this summer at Phillips Academy in the English-as-a-second-language program. During the regular school year, Ms. Green is an elementary school teacher in Lowell. Her husband, Jack, is a lawyer with Converse in North Reading.

Ms. Green said the Spanish students did quite a lot while they were visiting here. They went to the beach, shopped in Maine, visited the Andover Historical Society's headquarters, sailed in Lawrence, swam in Pumps Pond and "just hung out."

Did you hear soon-to-be sixth-graders Lee Palmer and Janine Givens on WBZ radio's Kid Company Sunday? The girls talked about why they want to be able to use all floors of Memorial Hall Library without a parent nearby or without written permission from the children's room librarian. The girls said they'd get together another petition of other kids' signatures, requesting access, if the situation isn't resolved by the time they return to school in the fall.

The Spanish students who were visiting in this area got together for a photo before leaving last week. One of the host families, Jack and Pam Green of 6 Tallyho Lane, said the visit worked well all around.

The show's theme for the evening was freedom of speech and discrimination. Several youngsters phoned in to tell about times when they believed someone discriminated against them. Mostly they told of not being allowed to enter an antique bookstore, for instance, or of storekeepers not waiting on them because they are kids.

One 15-year-old girl told of going to the Salem Public Library to work on a term paper that was due soon. She found the main part of the library closed because it was being renovated. So she went to the children's room to use its encyclopedias. There she was asked to leave since she was older than 12. The radio announcer called it a case of reverse discrimination. The girl said she protested and then was allowed to stay in the children's room for 30 minutes.

Andover High School junior David Bevacqua, 15, of 10 Gavin Circle, is home and nearly fully recovered from injuries he suffered in a fall on Cadillac Mountain in Maine last month, while hiking with his family. He punctured a lung and received numerous bruises, according to his dad, Paul Bevacqua.

If you have information for the Towntalk column, please write it down and bring it to the Townsman by 5 p.m. Monday.

NEWS IN BRIEF

School's broken furniture is up for grabs

If you've gone by many of the school yards lately you may have noticed piles of furniture building up. The large dumpsters, such as the one on the West Elementary School playground, are filled with broken desks, chairs and other school furniture that is to be taken to the dump, said Lee Winchell, custodial supervisor for the school system.

The furniture, said Mr. Winchell, is usually stored in the various school building's basements until a large quantity builds up and then it is trucked to the dump. The furniture may be taken by individuals before it is taken to the dump, said Mr. Winchell.

"But I don't know why anyone would want any of that stuff. It's broken, that's why it's going to the dump."

Clerk needs poll workers for elections

Town Clerk Randy Hanson is looking for people to work during the fall elections.

"I'm having trouble getting poll workers," Ms. Hanson said.

Ms. Hanson would be glad to have residents help for even a couple hours during the day or evening, so people wouldn't be working 12- and 13-hour days.

Anyone interested in the position is invited to contact the clerk's office for details regarding hours and compensation.

Primary election

Less than two weeks remain for residents to register to vote in the fall state primary. The primary is on Tuesday, Sept. 18. The last day to register to vote in the primary is Tuesday, Aug. 21.

The town clerk's office will be open for night registration on Tuesday, Aug. 14, from 6-8 p.m., and Tuesday, Aug. 21, from 8:30 a.m. -10 p.m.

The clerk's office will also be open on Saturday, Aug. 18, from 9 a.m. -5 p.m. Registrars will also be at Old Town Hall on Main Street on the 18th Recycling bins are lined up Monday outside of an apartment complex on High Street, waiting for Andover's first curbside collection day. "We didn't get any complaints. A lot of people are complying," said Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski. Recycling of paper and glass at curbside is now mandatory in Andover. Plastic and aluminum can be taken the third Saturday of every month to West Middle School, Shawsheen Road, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Waste motor oil can be taken by Andover residents for recycling in North Andover the second Wednesday and second Saturday of each month, Main Street, behind the North Andover Fire Station.

from 9 a.m. to noon.

Tuesday, Aug. 21, is also the last day to change party enrollment or to send absentee ballot applications to certified permanently disabled persons.

State election

Tuesday, Oct. 9, is the last day to register to vote in the state election. The state election is Tuesday, Nov. 6.

The clerk's office will be open for night registration on Sept. 25 and Oct. 2, from 6-8 p.m., and on Oct. 9 from 8:30-10 p.m. The office will also be open Saturday, Sept. 29, from 9 a.m. -5 p.m.

Oct. 9 is the last day to change party enrollment or to send absentee ballot applications to permanently disabled persons.

Auction set

The Barnard Building, at 10-16 Main St., is scheduled to hit the auction block Monday, Aug. 27, at 3 p.m. The auction was originally advertised for this Monday, but was rescheduled.

William J. Scanlon, owner of the building, has not offered any comment on whether he will try to retain ownership of the property.

Other businesses housed in the Barnard building include Bel Canto restaurant, Ford's Coffee Shop and Hughes Pharmacy.

The Barnard building is assessed at $4,001,600, according to assessor's figures.

COOKING

Try using basil this month

By Rita Richardson

August is the month to harvest, store and enjoy basil. Sensitive to frost and cold weather, basil will thrive here only in the hot summer months, so new plants or seeds must be sown each year. Many cooks savor the anise, lemony, peppery pungency of basil, a member of the mint family.

Here are a few inspirations:

Mince fresh leaves and strew over sliced tomatoes, add salt, pepper and a dribble of olive oil for a simple summer salad.

Tear leaves coarsely and add to any green salad for zing.

Leaves may be washed, dried and packed in olive oil to store. Rinse off oil to use. The resulting basil oil is an added dividend to use in cooking and salad dressings.

Bottle basil leaves with one-half cider vinegar and one-half white wine. Cork or cap and let set two weeks for year-round basil vinegar.

Many people associate basil with pesto.

Cookbooks can delineate the recipe for this combination of basil, pine nuts, garlic and Parmesan cheese. Process in blender until a paste (pesto-Italian) forms, spoon over hot pasta and toss well.

Other pesto ideas: Add to hollowed out cherry tomatoes; smooth on fish fillets, roll up and bake with white wine; freeze in packets or cubes to have in the winter; smear on store-bought bread dough, shape as loaf and bake as directed for pesto bread.

Tear a few basil leaves on top of take-out pizza for pizzazz.

Pick a basil bouquet for the table and enjoy the "perfume" it gives to the kitchen or dining area.

Plant basil in a prime spot in the garden. Basil loves as much sunlight as possible. Pinch back the small shoots to encourage bushiness. Plant globe or small leafed basil for a border. Plant opal basil for lavender vinegar to grace your window sill.

If you know of a person living in Andover who is a good cook, call the Townsman at 475-1943. We welcome cooking column suggestions.

Robert Henderson to receive YMCA award

Robert M. Henderson, chairman and chief executive officer of the Andover Bank, will be the first recipient of the Merrimack Valley YMCA's Distinguished Service Award.

The trustees and directors of the organization designed the award to recognize an annual recipient for loyalty, support and outstanding volunteer service to this YMCA. Beginning this year the association will honor a Merrimack Valley individual who represents the spirit and character of the YMCA and whose service to the YMCA in the diverse communities of Greater Lawrence is exemplary.

Friday, Sept. 21, is the date at the Old Town Hall for the reception and event, "A Standing Ovation," an evening designed to honor Mr. Henderson and support the YMCA scholarship funds.

The YMCA special events committee, chaired by Cynthia Wright of Andover, is planning an evening that includes a champagne reception followed by the award presentation. The Steppin' Up Band will perform for listening and dancing. There will be a dessert, coffee and cordial buffet at 10:30 p.m.

Mr. Henderson served as chairman of the YMCA capital campaigns in 1972 and 1977 that raised the funds to build the Andover/North Andover Branch of the Merrimack Valley YMCA.

He served as president of the Lawrence Branch in 1979 and president of the Merrimack Valley YMCA's corporate board in 1986.

Hunneman is on list of top sales companies

The 1990 REAL Trends nationwide survey of real estate brokerage firms just released its listing identifying the 100 largest independent residential brokerage firms based on the number of transactions handled in 1989. The REAL Trends study looked at sales volume and also took into account number of agents and offices and diversification of the regional independents. Hunneman & Company REALTORS/ Better Homes & Gardens, a division of Hunneman Real Estate Corporation, which has an office in Andover, was included as number 45th on the list of companies. Hunneman & Company is a 28-office firm with more than 500 sales associates. In 1989, the firm had a sales volume of $600 million.

"There are over 130,000 residential real estate companies nationally," says REAL Trends co-editor, Laurie Moore. "This means the top 100 independents represent less than one-tenth of a percent of the nation's firms and yet they control 9 percent of the residential business handled by brokerage firms."

Hunneman Real Estate Corporation was founded in 1929.

College offers program in biotechnology

Middlesex Community College will offer a certificate program in biotechnology starting in September through its division of continuing education. The program responds to a need for trained workers for this industry in Massachusetts, one of the country's three leading areas in biotechnology, said college spokeswoman Elizabeth Roop.

Individuals who begin the program this fall can complete the requirements for the certificate by December 1991. The classes will meet evenings for four semesters, including a summer session.

Mariluci T. Bladon, coordinator of the program, has a doctorate in human genetics from the University of Michigan. He has held staff positions at Northeastern University and the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and in private industry.

An informational open house will be held at the Bedford campus, Building 4, Tuesday, Aug. 14, from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Middlesex was able to institute the biotechnology certificate program through a grant from Bay State Skills Corp., an organization that provides seed money for educational initiatives that benefit the economy, Ms. Roop said.

Andover woman named officer in science foundation

A science foundation has started a Boston chapter, and an Andover woman is its secretary.

Joan Dow is secretary of the Boston chapter of Achievement Rewards for College Scientists Foundation Inc.

A charter luncheon was held recently at the Boston Museum of Science to announce the newly created chapter.

ARCS was begun in 1958 on the West Coast by women who were concerned with the Soviet Union's sudden pre-eminence in space (with the launch of Sputnik), officers said. They responded by organizing to support the education of top young scientists in the United States.

Since then, ARCS chapters nationwide have raised more than $12 million and supported more than 3,500 students.

"ARCS members have remained a group of volunteer women who feel our nation's future as a world leader depends upon the ability of our best and brightest young scientists to receive a top-flight education," said Dr. Joan M. Jacobson of Concord, president of the Boston chapter.

Membership dues and volunteer efforts support the organization's overhead, so that 100 percent of donors' gifts goes directly to the scholars, Dr. Jacobson said.

Peter Ames, vice president of education and special programs at the Museum of Science, spoke at the luncheon about the international science exhibit on "Soviet Space" at the museum until Sept. 23.

Mr. Ames said that in the next 20 years, 80 percent of the work force will be women and minorities.

"More women are needed in science," he said.

The Science Museum shares the roles in a joint mission with ARCS to "to turn youngsters on to science," he added.

Dr. John D. Hellmann, a biopharmacologist at Harvard Medical School, talked about being an ARCS scholar while a student at the University of California at Berkeley.

Joan Dow

Dr. Hellmann gave a testimonial to the benefit of receiving funds from ARCS.

All members of ARCS, professional and non-professional, donate their services. Chapters allocate their funds to accredited colleges and universities in their areas.

A student receiving a scholarship award must have a high scholastic record, proven ability in a scientific field and be a citizen of the United States.

Selection is made by the school.

The organization "provides a way business, education, civic and social members of a community may combine their interest and efforts to achieve a strong contribution to the future and to America's youth," said Mary H. Myers, vice president of the Boston chapter. She is founder and president of Energy Investment

For membership information, write to Dr. Jacobson or Ms. Myers at 286 Congress St., second floor, Boston 02210-1097.

PA math students shine in competition

Prove that there is a convex polygon of 1,990 sides with all angles equal and whose side lengths are the squares of the numbers one, two, three, ..., 1,990 in some order.

Believe it or not, the problem would make sense if you were on a team of six American high school students who took part in an international math competition last month.

The team, including a student from Phillips Academy, placed third in the 31st International Mathematical Olympiad held from July 8 to 19 in Beijing, China.

Recent Phillips graduate Timothy Kokesh of Bartlesville, Okla., and his teammates scored 174 points out of a possible 252. Ahead of the American team were teams from China (230) and the USSR (193). Romania and France placed behind the United States with scores of 171 and 168, respectively.

"We're very pleased with the team's finish, our best since 1986," said U.S. team coach Gerald Heuer of Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn.

"And the outlook for the next few years also seems bright," added his fellow coach, Gregg Patrino of First Boston Corp. in New York, N.Y. "Our number-one contestant has two more years of eligibility, and we have several promising ninth- and 10th-graders in training."

Mr. Kokesh narrowly missed being awarded a bronze medal at the Olympiad. He was the first PA student to advance to the finals.

At the regional level, the group from Phillips came in first.

Andover residents Sharon Tentarelli, who graduated from Phillips in June, and her brother, Eric, a soon-to-be PA senior, made it to the second round of the math competition.

The competition was conducted at the students' home schools, according to the PA group's adviser, math instructor David Penner.

Mike Robinson, also of Andover and another senior, placed among the top 140 students in the country.

What's in it for the students besides the challenge of the convex polygon?

"First of all, they get fun," Mr. Penner said.

That, of course, depends on your idea of fun. The Olympiad teams competed by working on solutions to six mathematical problems in two four-and-a-half-hour sessions. "They're puzzles if you look at them the right way," Mr. Penner said.

"There are also some monetary prizes" at the top levels, he added.

The usual PA math team coach, Don Barry, is on sabbatical, and Mr. Penner took over the group for him this year. "Not too many coaches would leave their teams when their prospects are so hot," Mr. Penner said with a laugh. "I inherited a very good group, and so will he when he comes back."

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

Some babies take a long time to learn that a bath can be fun. Babies who still dislike being undressed and put to kick on a big surface probably will not enjoy being bathed either. Even a baby who enjoys free kicking may dislike being bathed. No baby will get over a fear by being frightened. Don't bathe a frightened baby. Don't even sit beside the bath to wash him or her. Wrap in a big towel on a bed or changing mat and wash the baby bit by bit instead. This gets the baby just as clean and accustomed to feeling wet all over.

A lot of hospitals promise quality care.

We offer living proof.

It's the smile on the face of a young girl. The look of confidence in a mother's eyes. It's a visible sense of well-being. The look of renewed health. It's living proof. And at New England Memorial, we believe it's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer—the stories of people like yourself who have made the right choice for so many reasons.

It's the quality of our staff. In every department of our modern facility, it's the superior nursing and physician care we provide. It's the quality of caring that touches our patients' lives in such significant ways. It's the genuine compassion that's an integral part of our approach to psychiatric care. It's the warmth and hope that enhance our fertility center. It's the hand and heart working together making our staff the right choice for so many families.

Kids hop to raise funds for Easter Seals

Youngsters at the Bright Horizon's Children's Center in Andover will learn about physical disabilities Tuesday through a special Easter Seal program, sponsored by TJX Cos.

The Easter Seal Hop-n-ing teaches children about the causes of disabilities and their effects on people's everyday lives. The children also find out how wheelchairs, crutches and other specialized equipment work.

The next part of Hop-n-ing gives the kids a chance to help. They hop as many times as they can in three minutes, earning money pledged for each hops.

Funds raised help provide Easter Seal services for people with disabilities.

Last year, more than 9,000 children across the state hopped for Easter Seals, raising $225,000.

Author talks about book, 'Necessary Losses'

Judith Viorst, author, poet and contributing editor of Redbook magazine, will speak at the J. Everett Collins Center on Shawsheen Road Monday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m. She will talk about her latest book, "Necessary Losses." The event is sponsored by Merrimack Valley Hospice of Andover.

Mrs. Viorst, known as "the housewife's poet laureate," was born and raised in New Jersey. She received a bachelor of arts degree in history Phi Beta Kappa from Rutgers University.

After six years of study, she graduated in 1981 from the Washington Psychoanalytic Institute. Many of her poems have been published in New York, Holiday and Redbook.

Mrs. Viorst has written three books of prose: "Yes, Married," "Love & Guilt & the Meaning of Life, Etc" and "Necessary Losses," which has been a national best seller since its publication in 1986.

Mrs. Viorst defines necessary losses as "the loves, illusions, dependencies and impossible expectations that all of us have to give up in order to grow. The losses of childhood. The loss of impossible expectations we bring to all relationships. The losses, as we age, of our own younger selves. And, of course, the loss of people we love."

Necessary losses are 'the loves, illusions, dependencies and impossible expectations that all of us have to give up in order to grow.'

Judith Viorst, author

"Wisdom is usually acquired at the cost of great pain," said Rabbi Harold S. Kushner, author of "When Bad Things Happen to Good People." "But Judith Viorst has written a wise book so wittily and so well that she makes us wise almost painlessly. 'Necessary Losses' is a wonderful book."

Mrs. Viorst is also the author of six collections of poems, including "It's Hard to Be Hip Over 30 and Other Tragedies of Married Life" and "How Did I Get to Be 40 and Other Atrocities."

She is the author of nine books for children, including "The Tenth Good Thing about Barney," "Sunday Morning" and "Alexander, Who Used to Be Rich Last Sunday."

Her newest children's book, "The Goodbye Book," was published by Atheneum.

Tickets for Mrs. Viorst's speech are available through Aug. 31. Sponsor tickets, at $25, are still available; general seating may be purchased for $10. CEU's for social work and nursing have been applied for.

For tickets call 1-800-696-6776 or 470-1615.

Youngsters sing about environment

A musical performance of "Earthtunes" will be presented Friday, Aug. 10, in the cafeteria of Sanborn Elementary School.

This environment-related show will run from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. and involves students from a thinking skills program called Kaleidoscope Institute for Thinking Excellence.

The youngsters, from kindergarten to sixth grade, plan to sell recycled items. All proceeds from the show will be donated to environment-related charities.

The students have come up with a list of possible recipients and will use their newly acquired decision-making skills to select the most appropriate ones, said Janis Baron, director of KITE.

Tickets for the show, filled with catchy tunes such as "Pick It Up," are $3 per person and available at the door.

KITE, a new component of the Kaleidoscope program, is an all-day program running this week and teaches motivated kids how to think and plan better, Ms. Baron said.

Like Kaleidoscope, it is a non-profit program offered in cooperation with Andover's Department of Community Services.

Andover teens wrap up summer of good times

As the end of summer approaches, so does the end of the Department of Community Services' program for Andover teens ages 12 to 16. Three more will be offered to wrap up the summer.

A bus trip to Salisbury Beach in New Hampshire will leave from the Senior Center Monday, Aug. 13, at 6 p.m.

No preregistration is required for this trip, but at least 25 people must be present before the bus will leave. Teens must arrive by 5:45 p.m. The cost is $7, and the bus will leave Salisbury at 10:30 p.m. and arrive at the Senior Center at approximately 11.

The DCS will sponsor the last Monday night program Aug. 20 at the Andover Jade in Shawsheen Plaza. The evening will consist of a Chinese food buffet and dancing. The cost will be $10, which includes the buffet, Chinese tea and a tip for the server. Any beverage other than tea will cost extra.

The group will meet at the Jade at 6:45 p.m.; the buffet begins at 7 p.m. The evening will end at 10. Arrange for a ride from Shawsheen Plaza.

The final trip will be Thursday,

Aug. 23, to Riverside Park in Agawam. Preregistration is necessary, and there must be at least 25 participants.

The cost of the trip will be $25, which will include transportation and admission to the park with its more than 100 rides and attractions.

You cannot bring food or drink into the park, but there are picnic tables outside. Or teens may bring extra money to eat in the park.

Anyone interested in this trip must preregister at the DCS office before Monday, Aug. 20, and pay in advance. The bus will leave at 9 a.m.

RELIGION

Vocalist performs at Andover Baptist

Dave Boyer, a big-band style Christian vocalist, will appear in concert at Andover Baptist Church Sunday, Aug. 12, at 10 a.m.

Mr. Boyer has been singing gospel music since 1966. Coming to the churches straight from the same clubs that produced Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Tony Bennett, he aims for the same velvet-vocal qualities, yet the lyrics he sings tell of the grace of God, according to the Rev. Thomas Goldthwaite, pastor of Andover Baptist.

He is best known for his songs "Calvary Covers It All" and "Come On Home."

Mr. Boyer's story can be seen in the movie "So Long, Joey," a reenactment of his previous life and conversion, Rev. Goldthwaite said.

Dave Boyer, who sings Christian music in the style of big bands, will perform at Andover Baptist Church.

Rev. Townsend gets send-off

The Rev. Norman J. Townsend's will celebrate his last Sunday at South Church Aug. 12.

Rev. Townsend has resigned after three years as minister of youth and Christian education to become pastor of First Church of Christ (United Church of Christ) in Bradford.

He and his family will be honored at a reception immediately following the 9:30 a.m. worship service.

The board of deacons and the board of Christian education is organizing the reception.

"Working with the leaders and youth of South Church will always be remembered with thanksgiving," Rev. Townsend said in Sunday's church bulletin.

Hurrah for special needs camp

By Thomas Mullings

It's the summer camp season again. And anyone who has ever attended a camp knows how truly memorable these times can be — the friendships, field trips and, of course, the endless range of activities.

Some youngsters are living those special summer camp memories right now in Andover. On the campus of Phillips Academy, about 20 kids (between the ages of 7-21) are participating at Camp Hurrah.

Camp Hurrah, now in its second year, was designed to serve the region's special needs youngsters. Residents of Andover, Melrose, Methuen, North Reading and elsewhere are welcome at the camp, which runs for six weekly sessions, each of which costs $75. The camp runs weekdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Norma Ventre, the director, said there is a special purpose behind the camp. "Our overriding philosophy is for the kids to have fun and socialize with one another. They need to talk to each other, interact positively with one another," Mrs. Ventre said.

Each Monday, because of the excitement of the weekend and a few new faces in the group, the kids are a little restless.

"Some know one another. Others need to get acquainted with each other. They need to get back into the groove," she said.

But she said they are a superb group. "I really emphasize they are a good group," Mrs. Ventre said. "They have so much to give. Here they have their voice recognized and honored for what it is."

The campers participate in many physical activities such as aerobics, volleyball, basketball and swimming.

During a water balloon toss, Mrs. Ventre runs around getting more balloons. Before the group begins to play spaghetti (untwine a circle of disentangled humanity), one of the campers says how scared he is of drowning in the pool. Mrs. Ventre calms him by reminding him there are two lifeguards at poolside. "You won't drown, buddy," a friend assures.

But it's not all lounging at the pool at Camp Hurrah, either.

Every Tuesday, the group takes a field trip to spots such as the Franklin Park Zoo, the U.S.S. John F. Kennedy and George's Island. They also visit local spots such as the Andover Historical Society and Robert S. Peabody Archaeology Museum.

"They take in what is in the community, too," she said.

Mrs. Ventre teaches academics during the day. Whether cooking pancakes, using calculators, reading maps or counting cubes, she said she wants to encourage the kids to talk.

"Even if they don't know the answers, I just want them talking about it," she said. "We raise questions, which starts them thinking."

Mary Donahue, program coordinator of the Department of Community Services and co-sponsor of Camp Hurrah, said it is a good program. "The staff is well-trained and experienced," she said. "Our children are very active."

Ms. Donahue said the program was put together after parents suggested something should be done for special needs children during the summer. She's happy with the program; the state recently checked and approved all of the programs in Andover, including Camp Hurrah.

Dean Bililies is the owner of Alternative Leisure Company Inc., the Bedford-based special needs recreation company that oversees Camp Hurrah.

The most important decision he had to make was who to hire as camp director.

"I needed a leader, someone extremely energetic," he said.

He hired Mrs. Ventre, a special needs teacher at Marsh Elementary School in Methuen.

"I was given a reference. I was told she'd make a good director."

Mrs. Ventre said the counselors working with her are excellent. She said Kristin Galvin, Susan Ventre and Billy Owens are "very giving and understanding."

Mr. Owens, still in high school, said the job has been a learning experience. "They're just like everybody else, except they need a little more attention," he said. "It changes my whole perspective on life."

Mrs. Ventre, a psychology major at the University of Lowell, said she had previously wanted to work with juveniles, but her experience at Camp Hurrah may have changed her future career. "Maybe I would like to work with these special needs kids."

Groups disagree on teacher course reimbursement

By Lisa A. Boudreau

Some School Committee members and teachers are clashing over what type of courses qualify for teachers to collect part of a $87,000 incentive pool. If all 119 teachers who applied for their share of the pool receive payments this September, each will receive approximately $800.

Committee member Richard Hubbell says some of the courses taken by teachers this past school year and submitted for collection next September were self-improvement ones that have little or no benefit to the school system. He also said proposals for reimbursement should have been submitted before June. Almost all of the reimbursement requests were submitted after June 1, according to Mr. Hubbell.

Dr. Christopher Outwin, a member of the School Committee and the sub-committee formed to evaluate incentive pool criteria, said proposals for the incentive pool should be innovative and ultimately should enrich students' learning.

"Several members of the School Committee do not regard taking a course in MacWrite or Apple Writer (computer key-boarding) as a path of career development that is inspired and innovative and will result in clear benefit to the education of Andover's students. Obviously there are many computer courses that would meet this test," wrote Dr. Outwin in his memo to the School Committee discussing the meeting of the incentive pool sub-committee meeting last May.

The other six members of the sub-committee are teachers Steve Jankauskas, Robert Walmsley, Kerry Costello and Charlotte LaPointe; Dr. Kenneth Seifert, school superintendent, and Dr. Lois Haslam, assistant superintendent.

According to the teachers' contract, eight-tenths of one percent of the total salary account in the schools' budget is to be set aside for an incentive pool, said Mr. Jankauskas, sub-committee member and fourth-grade teacher at South Elementary School.

Mr. Jankauskas said the classes offered during the in-service days keep teachers up to date and do benefit the school system. Many teachers also construct projects used during classroom exercises that they spend many non-school hours developing, he said.

Eligible employees can earn a share of the incentive pool money by successfully completing a pre-approved course by the school administration with a grade of B or better. A majority of the courses that teachers took were offered by the school department during in-service days when the children were dismissed from school. Other courses were taken outside the Andover school system and count for incentive pool funds if they are not part of a teacher's degree program.

The teachers' contract, negotiated four years ago, specifies teachers holding mas-school and one in Paris. Mr. Coco is the son of Cornelius and Vena Coco of Andover.

While he was a student at Phillips Academy three years ago, he participated in a three-month Andover-Paris exchange. It was then he was bitten with the travel bug and the desire to study abroad.

"When I was there I said to myself, 'I've got to go here.' I knew right then, and there what I wanted to do," said Mr. Coco.

One of the main reasons he applied to Georgetown University was for its school of foreign study and its connection with Institute d'Etudes Politiques in Paris. Both schools prepare students for a career in foreign service through courses in politics, economics, international business, law and the chance to study abroad, said Mr. Coco.

He and five other Georgetown students participated in the exchange last year. Mr. Coco arrived in Nice late last August and had a chance to travel before he began classes in September at the Institute in Paris.

College life in France's capital is very different from college life in the U.S. capital, said Mr. Coco. Both schools are in the heart of a city, but the Institute doesn't have its own separate campus the way Georgetown does, he said. In Paris there are just buildings for classes and some scattered buildings used for student housing.

Though the Institute provided dormitory housing for the Georgetown students, Mr. Coco decided to rent an apartment and try Parisian living on his own. After three weeks of apartment hunting and sleeping on the floors of friends' hotel rooms, he found an affordable apartment in the city's 16th quarter.

Paris is divided into different quarters or neighborhoods. The first quarter begins in the center of the city and the numbers of the sections increase as they spiral out from the middle, he said. The apartment he rented was a nice four-room place in a quiet neighborhood. It was conveniently located near a market, a few restaurants and close to his classes.

Life in Paris was very fast paced, he said. Along with a chaotic beginning, Mr. Coco said he found Parisian living a little difficult to get used to socially.

"The Parisian people were very hard to get to know," he said. "They were hard to meet and reserved."

Not all Parisians were cold and difficult to meet, he said. One day while Mr. Coco was studying at the school's library he met Luc Arasse, another student. The two began talking and became friends. Mr. Arasse recently visited his American friend in Andover. He spent a few weeks here practicing his English and traveling in the area.

Once classes were in full swing, Mr. Coco and his five other friends from Georgetown met many new French and other foreign-exchange students. After a full day of classes they would meet in one of the city's many cafes and spend hours relaxing and discussing various topics.

The students had more time to enjoy day-to-day living in Paris because their class loads weren't too heavy until later on in the school year. Mr. Coco took a French language class, a history course exploring contemporary France and a course on the socio-economic development of Third World countries.

There were no weekly tests or mid-term exams, he said. Classes were 90 minutes at the Institute and students were graded only on final exams.

Students were allowed just one week off during the Christmas and New Year's holidays. Mr. Coco spent Christmas with relatives in Italy. He and his cousins from Milan went skiing in the Italian Alps during New Year's eve and day. Italians celebrate the new year with champagne just the way Americans do. There were many toasts to the good times anticipated in the year to come, he said, as well as a fireworks display.

The Spring went by very quickly, said Mr. Coco. Before he knew it, final exams were around the corner. His exams consisted of two, four-hour written tests for his French history class. Essays at the Institute had to be written in a certain formula, he said. There were two parts consisting of two sub-parts each.

"Everything, especially the written exams, were expected to be logically exact at the Institute," said Mr. Coco. "They required a lot of discipline and it was good experience for students, I think."

His other classes held oral exams. He said these were very foreboding, even though he speaks near fluent French.

"The professors wait for you at the end of a very long hallway at a large desk. Then they rifle off question after question at you. It's really the moment of truth," he said. "You either know it or you don't. You can't bluff your way through an oral exam."

Once his exams were finished he and two friends from Georgetown began their travels through central Europe into eastern Europe. (See Mr. Coco's column on the editorial page.) Their trip got off to a rocky start, said Mr. Coco. The three traveled to Brussels, Belgium, where they thought they could purchase an Inter-rail pass to travel by train. Once they arrived in Brussels they were told they had to return to France to buy the tickets. They went back to France, bought their tickets and were then off to Amsterdam, Holland.

The first order of business in each city was to exchange their currency. Next they had to find a place to stay and then they were free to do some sight seeing. From Amsterdam they traveled by train to Berlin, where they took turn chipping a piece of the Berlin Wall.

After Germany they went to Warsaw, Poland. In Poland they found they could afford to stay in the city's finest Western-chain hotel. Their next stop was Prague, the Czechoslovakian capital. Next they went to Vienna and finally to Budapest, Hungary.

By mid-July, Mr. Coco's friends returned to the U.S. He then traveled by himself back to Vienna and then Salzburg. From there he went to Zurich through the Alps to Milan, to visit his relatives one more time before he returned home.

Once Mr. Coco completes Georgetown, he hopes to travel again though a career in foreign service.

Conflict in Middle East hits Andover

Arabia. He tried earlier this week to contact friends who are still in the unit and got no answer on the phone.

"The only time you don't get an answer from a military line is when they've been deployed," the former paratrooper said.

"I'm 95 percent confident that the brigade I was in was the one that was sent down there," Mr. Catalano said.

"It's frustrating for me to sit back here. There's so many rumors going around as to what's going on over there."

Mr. Catalano said the troops the United States sent to Saudi Arabia are terribly outgunned and wouldn't have a chance against Iraq if the Iraqis were to attack immediately.

The 2,000 troops of the 82nd Airborne are lightly armed, while the 120,000 Iraqi troops are heavily armed, according to Mr. Catalano.

"The Iraqis have 55 armored divisions ready to go at the border," he said. "It's obvious it's a mismatch."

"I think the potential here is they could wipe out the whole brigade," he said. "They could literally just run over the 2,000 troops."

"I'm glad as hell I'm not in that situation,"

Mr. Catalano said. "I think those guys are the sacrificial lambs to be honest with you."

Despite the dangers and because he is currently unemployed, Mr. Catalano said he might be tempted to re-enlist if the current situation in Iraq were to escalate to a war.

"I just might go back in," he said.

But he said he was not envious of his comrades.

"I feel really bad for those guys," Mr. Catalano said.

The counselors for the Department of Community Services summer programs filed the following reports from last week:

Sheehee Shawnee

Alyssa Traub, Michael Zakin, Mathew McDermit, Tommy Haugh, and Jonathan Papas enjoyed eating lots of pizza on the first day of week six. Danielle Cohen, Stephanie Hargadon, Alliane Hughes and Michelle Chandler made beautiful pompom pictures on Monday. Binoculars were made out of toilet paper rolls on Tuesday. Ashley Connerty, Lauren Marsh, Dina Carusi, Jake Christopher, Stephanie Rummel and Andrew Tonelli made super creations on their binoculars. We also had a great time doing an obstacle course! Dustin Tapp, Andrew Christopher, Benjamin Latow, Rachel Adams, Paul Vincent Chiozzi and Mary Margaret Reilly made bead necklaces Wednesday. We also had lots of fun playing with goop! Michael Donohue, Elliot Slegal, Elissa Slavin, Ryan Desmond, and Jamie Lee Fox had a messy but excellent time. Thursday was Water Play Day. Abigail Louise Reilly, Sarah Donelan, Lauren Dorsey, Sara Jenike and Patrick Twomey got very refreshed by the water. We all got a chance to cool off with delicious pop-sicles, too!

West

Picnic day was a great way to start off week six. Jessica Smith, Aimee Ferry, Brian Tisbert, Timmy Smith, Rachel Hartman and Kristen DeLuca were big winners of the field events. Olympic Day was triumphant with relay winners Kathleen McCumber, Lynn McCumber, Alison Corey, Billy DeLuca and David Hartman. Thursday was Mike Grieco and Ashley Tisbert's birthday. The talent show was a hit, featuring the acts of Jessica Purcell, Lisa Tisbert, Shannon Hart and Rachel Venuti. The week ended with a trip to McDonald's and Kalidescope's circus.

Sanborn

Week six at Sanborn has been wild and very busy. Monday play dough creations came out wonderfully. Especially those made by Michelle Danis, Heather Tessier and Shannon Breen. Wednesday was silly and fun with Olympics Day. Joe Jelson and Mike Couture couldn't beat Tom Harwell for first place. Thursday's talent show was especially great with Madonna and M.C. Hammer look alikes. Friday's barbecue was popular as well as the trip to Rose Glen.

South

The egg toss was a big hit on Monday. Michelle Doucette and Andy Houston were the big winners. Tuesday our hockey players crushed Bancroft. Ed Owens as head counselor obviously had no chance of helping his team survive the overpowering offense of South. Stars of the game were Andy and John Houston, Rocky Tradd, Jon Germain, Paul and James Sibelle and Vandan Gandhi. With the hockey players out of the gym the younger campers had a chance to show their skills in Shipwreck. Phobe, Maddy, Sophie and Elsie Eustis, Timmy Houston, Charles, Patrick and Jen Murnane and Emily and Joseph Reynolds were stars. Wednesday was Olympic day. The obstacle course took up much of the day. Winners in their age groups were for 5 and 6 year olds Joe Reynolds, 7 and 8 year olds James Sibelle, 9 and 10 year olds David Cordina, and 11 and 12 year olds Jen Murnane.

HaKowWee

The sixth week at Camp HaKowWee was full of fun activities. On Monday all the campers made salt jars and sock puppets. Some of the most beautiful jars were made by Adam Caterino, Stephanie Ciampa, Judy Vajda, John Edwards Jr., Rohan and Hemant Joshi, Jason and Leanne Shaw, Douglas Cooper and Jimmy, John and Joel Anderson. On Tuesday, Sarah Kolitz, Jeff Weber, David and Jeff Irvine, David Arsenault, Lydia Kardos and Michael Burton made pompom creations. Wednesday, Peg Campbell came to show how to make beautiful pins. Brock Bouchard, Chris Costello, and K.C. Costello, Matt Gilmore, Jen Taylor, Christiana and Jon Kuipers and Danny and James Micheline made pins. And the week ended with Officer Hastings talking to the campers about being honest and never stealing. Then there was a bike trip to the Addison Art Gallery topped off with a cookout. Big eaters were David and Andrew McDonald, Alysson Siopes, Noboru Tskuda, Marty Karim and Eric Jenike.

Bancroft

On Monday Laurie and Sue Cookson were the last ones to get eggy. Courtney Sullivan and Katlin Sorrantos won the egg toss. Tuesday we decorated pillowcases. Among the best were ones made by Leah Anciellos and Jessica Burtle. Wednesday was Olympics day, where challenging events were everywhere. On the long distance run Matt Trede came in first, Robby Plantoni came in second, Scott "Scooter" DeCoursey came in third and Megan Munroe came in fourth. Rudi Morando and Brian DeCoursey won the softball toss. Almost all the kids participated in a giant relay race. Thursday was the talent show day, where many kids displayed their talents on the Bancroft stage. Michael Shannon sang Old Dan Tucker, Matt Trede, Keith D'Amelio, and Mike Orendella sang "Bust A Move." The ter's degrees plus 60 credits are eligible to collect a portion of the cost by successfully completing a 30-hour course.

When teachers re-negotiated their contract with the school system this past year, employees holding doctorates and bachelor's degrees plus 30 credits were included in those eligible to participate in the courses and to collect funds. One of the teachers' goals, said Mr. Jankauskas, a bargaining team member, was to raise the top salary step to $45,000 annually.

"That wasn't accomplished this year. We only got as high as $39,000. So for teachers at the top step there wasn't any financial reason for them to continue taking courses," Mr. Jankauskas.

The seven-member subcommittee met in May and will meet again before September at a date and time yet to be announced, to discuss criteria for eligible courses for this school year. The sub-committee is expected to draw up criteria for this year's courses.

DCS has a bus going to Hampton Beach on Tuesdays and Thursdays

Department of Community Service will sponsor a shuttle bus to Hampton Beach on Tuesdays and Thursdays until Aug. 23. The cost is $6.

The bus will be filled on a first-come basis. A minimum of 30 individuals must be present by 8:30 a.m. before a bus will be scheduled for the day. The addition of a second bus is at the discretion of the DCS and directly related to demand and bus availability.

DCS accepts no responsibility for those who miss the bus to or from the beach. Trips will be canceled in the event of rain.

Water watch

Water is not an infinite resource. In fact, in recent years environmentalists have been concerned that people are depleting at an alarming rate the world's precious water supplies.

Voters gave the Board of Selectmen permission at June's Town Meeting to enter into a long-term agreement to sell water to North Reading. Andover should move very slowly in writing such a contract. In fact, it would be wise to continue to supply water to North Reading on an emergency-only basis, such as this community has done since 1955.

Moving water from Andover, which is in the Merrimack River watershed, to North Andover, which is located in the Ipswich River basin, would mean permanent loss of water to the former watershed because that water would never again be recycled back into the Merrimack River basin.

Chances are that Andover voters were not fully informed at the time they empowered the selectmen to enter into such a precedent setting contract. We recall that a few well-informed people rose to their feet too late to speak on Town Meeting floor. And today, the selectmen seem to be looking to Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski to make the decision when it is the selectmen's call.

No one is suggesting that we allow our neighbors to go dry. Bob McQuade, director of Andover's Department of Public Works, is satisfied North Reading has done its best to identify other water sources, as well as clean up its contaminated well. That town has drilled at least 300 test wells in its search.

But if Andover enters into a long-term contract with North Andover, North Reading most likely will relax its efforts to seek other sources of water, or to clean its well. North Reading's mandatory water ban has only been in effect two weeks. In addition, that community says it would not be fair to establish growth management strategies at this point. It will not be fair in years to come when there is not enough water to go around.

Rivers in the country have dried up from over-use. The Ipswich River runs backward in some places at times, from overuse. Those facts should set off red flashing lights for the Andover Board of Selectmen.

Yes, supply North Reading with water on an emergency basis. But no, don't enter into a long-term contract to move water from one basin into another. Water is one of our most precious resources.

Student traveled in Eastern Europe

By Michael Coco

"You are now leaving the American sector" read the multi-lingual sign on the Freidrichstrasse into East Berlin at a site more commonly known as Checkpoint Charlie. This crossroad has symbolized the focal point of history in the postwar era, the opposition of liberal democratic and Marxist-Leninist ideologies in a bipolar world.

I had the opportunity to witness first hand the recent breakdown of this status quo in international politics as two Georgetown University friends and I toured the newborn central European democracies of eastern Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary in June. While our personal interaction with the people of these countries gave me hope in the eventual success of their democratization process, it appeared that considerable yet varying degrees of economic reform and social adaptation would be required before these victims of a 45-year coma could fully recover.

It would be difficult to classify together the countries we visited or the people we encountered, but the leitmotif was sincere commitment to democracy despite a general uncertainty as to what that entails. In Berlin, a 21-year-old border guard we befriended described communism as "an experiment with good ideas that didn't work," emphasizing that he would probably remain a member of the party given its reform. The old system did contain some advantages.

Our friend, however, will gladly exchange the security of a guaranteed future as an officer in the army for the chance to decide his own life. Others will face the real possibility of unemployment for the first time. Personal initiative will have to replace the complacency encouraged under socialism. In a word, the individuals of former communist countries will be called upon to form their own political ideas and answer tough questions never before faced. It will be a radical change to adapt to the fact that the state is no longer there to take care of or take over all aspects of their lives.

The East Germans will enjoy reunification as an aid but not a panacea to the difficulties involved in these changes, but the Poles will have no such advantages in facing an even more desperate situation.

Regardless of having implemented some of the most draconian measures away from a command economy, three days in Warsaw was for me the most eye-opening account of what over four decades of Soviet oppression meant for these people. Warm Coke and bananas were virtually the only foods readily available and hard currency was in such high demand that apartments to let were thrown at us in return for dollars or Deutschmark. I found interesting the two imposing towers that symbolically dominate the Warsaw skyline

Write about the other side of the Twitchell case

Editor, Townsman:

I am writing in reference to the article on the Twitchell case that appeared on page 1 of the July 12 edition of the Townsman.

I am troubled by the fact that there was seemingly no attempt made by the writer, Don Staruk, to present the other side of this important case. The views of a member of the local Christian Science community are quoted extensively in describing her concern about the constitutional rights to practice religion. However, there is no discussion of why there was a manslaughter conviction here. There is no commentary from any jury members or other observers, including clergy of various faiths, that have publicly agreed with this verdict.

The Twitchells have certainly suffered, over the death of their two-year-old son, Robyn, and throughout the trial proceedings. But they watched this child die, in the practice of this religion. What is the appropriate role of the state here? I believe it is to protect the innocent, the disabled, the weak and, in this case, to protect against the neglect of a child's life.

I include for your review with this letter a recent column in the Boston Globe which featured an interview with one of the jurors on the case. She explains her own dilemma in reaching a verdict and says the Twitchells were "excellent parents" who tried to do the best they could. And she is somewhat critical of Judge Hamlin's instructions to the jury. But in describing the jury's attempt to agree on what a "reasonable person" would consider to be a sick child, she says, "When David Twitchell said that on the fifth day (of the illness), he was scared because he'd never seen his son vomit so violently, that's when we all believed a reasonable person would have taken him to a doctor."

Constitutional rights are to be cherished and protected, but are not without limits. If the Townsman chooses to cover such an important and complex issue, it should do so with a higher standard of objectivity and fairness.

Reader supports girls' efforts at library

The following letter was sent to Janine Givens of 14 Marland St., and a copy was sent to the Townsman:

Dear Janine:

Upon reading of your efforts to secure your rights to use all of the facilities at your local library, I was moved to take up a collection from amongst a group of my buddies to help fund your worthwhile petition drive. When I was your age, I, too, was informed by a librarian that I must restrict my reading to the children's section of the Bedford Public Library in the town where I grew up.

That was about 20 years ago and I, too, went home quite upset over the obvious unfairness of the rule, as my reading interests included mystery novels and the like from the adult section. My mother told me to simply ignore the rule and not to speak to the librarian at all - just to go about my business. Looking back, the educational benefits I won for myself by subsequently "breaking the rules" have far outweighed any possible consequences the library could have brought about in terms of punishing me.

My friends and I admire your alternative course of choosing to fight the rule itself, and while our contribution won't pay for a heck of a lot of legal fees, it should nevertheless secure a tidy stack of petitions and postage expenses for you. Always remember that when you work for what's right, you are never working alone. Your side will prevail, sport; give 'em hell!

above rows of identical socialist-bloc tenements, the dull gray of the cultural center in menacing Stalinist architecture reflecting in the shiny blue glass of the luxurious Marriott hotel across the boulevard.

Food may have been scarce, but there was no shortage of gadgets to buy in the streets as industrious Poles sought extra cash after making the difficult trip to Berlin. One realizes the state of the economy when Western cigarettes are welcomed instead of zloty as payment and it is sad to note that the gift of a single dollar bill to someone can buy a large meal.

The rules of a market economy may be more concrete than those of the democratic process, but they, too, are not self-evident after a half-century of five-year plans, production quotas and government subsidized prices.

It was amazing to see one Berlin vendor adamantly keep his sausages at twice the price of those at the neighboring stand despite the absences of customers. Clearly these habits will change quickly, but without instruction the trial-by-error lessons could bring rapid unemployment and other painful consequences. Black market currency dealers in Prague seemed to catch on more quickly and I was soon lambasted in perfect English by one of them for insisting on an exchange rate above that of the market price.

I was very fortunate to have traveled in Central Europe at a time when those countries were being liberated from their communist chains and rejoining the international community. There full recovery, however, will be long and difficult. In some cases, as in that of Poland, the economic scene will worsen before it improves. In other countries, such as Hungary, this economic liberalization has occurred more gradually and with relative ease. Each country will certainly find as well a unique political solution which justly reflects the national character of its citizens. One can be sure, in any event, that the natural tendency of men towards freedom and individual dignity will prevail.

Vents frustration about article

Editor, Townsman:

I'm writing this letter to vent my frustration in regards to the diabolical nature of journalistic expression. I believe that language is one of the strongest means of separation in the world. Languages between different cultures separate us as much as the languages we cultivate amidst our own culture.

With the onslaught of media-reliant education, I feel that to conclude an article with images such as "assorted styles of nunchakus, ninja claws, an open glove with claws, throwing stars, a homemade cross bow and knives" (Aug. 2 Townsman, page 32, "Local man pleads guilty to rape and other charges.") is to fill the reader's mind with a demonic and masochistic male stereotype.

The eye of the beholder here is an eye which alarmingly dismantled an esoteric weapon collection and snapped together a character straight from a Schwarzenegger movie.

My uncle collected WW II books, double-edge knives and photos of Hitler. Does that make him a Nazi? Did David Ainscow use these weapons when committing the crimes he was convicted for? Have the people of the Indian Ridge area been watching him swing from trees in a costume made of night, throwing stars at neighborhood kittens?

This is what I call the surveillance of assailants, needless sensationalism. Had this article been less nebulous, I might have reason to believe these weapons had signifi-

Woman begins Peace Corps stint

Andover resident Katharine Kimball will leave Aug. 12 to begin a two-year stint with the Peace Corps in Dominican Republic, Caribbean. After completing three months of training in Dominican Republic, she will work in community education promotion.

Ms. Kimball graduated from UVM in 1989 with a degree in Spanish and political science. She decided to join the Peace Corps because of a desire to learn more about the culture and lifestyle in a developing country.

"It will challenge and enable me to experiment with my own cultural and academic background," Miss Kimball explains.

Peace Corps, in the course of the last 29 years, has been able to serve the needs of individuals in 101 countries of the developing world. Volunteers promote self-sufficiency and mutual understanding in nations of Africa, Latin America, the South Pacific, Asia, the Caribbean, and Eastern Europe.

Volunteers work on projects determined by the need in the communities where they serve. Assignments are as varied as assisting a public health physician, building bridges and schools and teaching home improvement skills to women in villages.

Andover Gold is in playoffs for the fourth time

By Rick Harrison

For the fourth time in the last five years, the Andover Gold baseball team battled its way to the Suburban Pony League championship playoff series.

Gold, the SPL champ in 1986 and '87 and the runnerup last year, finished fourth during the regular season and then advanced to the best-of-3 title series with consecutive one-game knockout eliminations of Wilmington (4-2), the Reading Rockets (7-5) and intra-town archrival Andover Blue (5-4).

First-year SPL member Methuen Police provided the opposition in the finals, the third place regular-season finisher ousting Lynnfield (3-1), the Reading Astros (6-1) and Winthrop (3-2) to gain a shot at the crown.

Last weekend's championship series was swept by Methuen in two highly-competitive and totally opposite one-run games, the first a 3-2 pitcher's duel at Potter's Field in Methuen and the second an error-filled 10-9 contest at Andover High which both teams seemed intent on giving away.

Both games ended the same way, Gold threatening with runners at first and second base before the final out was made.

Gold is the only Suburban Pony League team to advance to the playoff finals four of the last five seasons.

AG finished the year with a 16-11 overall record, and since joining the SPL five summers ago Gold's overall record is 84-27-2.

Andover Gold, which graduates seven of the 16 members of this club and has two other undergraduates moving to Florida and New Jersey, will wrap up the season with the annual awards banquet at Backstreet in early October.

Andover Gold, 4-2

First-round playoff opponent Wilmington scored single runs in the first and fourth innings, and carried a 2-0 advantage into the bottom of the sixth before Gold erupted for all its runs in this victory at Andover High.

Righthander Matt Marvin was the complete-game winning pitcher, yielding just four singles, walking five and striking out eight. Only one Wilmington run was earned.

The first 10 AG batters went down in order, before Mike Famiglietti broke up the perfect game with a one-out single in the fourth.

AG loaded the bases in the fifth on consecutive one-out singles by Andy Brown and Brian Flanagan, along with a two-out dropped third strike enabling Todd Murray to reach safely. The threat went by the boards, however, when the next batter lined out to third base.

Famiglietti launched the sixth-inning rally with a triple, and he crossed moments later on a passed ball. Mike Sullivan followed with a double and was promptly singled home by John Shea to tie it 2-2. Andy Brown's one-out double rescued Shea with the game-winner, and a two-out triple by Matt Marvin produced the insurance run.

Marvin, getting stronger as the game progressed, sailed into the seventh but then hit a snag as Wilmington loaded the bases on an infield error and a pair of two-out walks. The final batter tapped back to the mound, however, to clinch the AG victory.

Brown and Famiglietti led the eight-hit attack with two safeties apiece.

Defensive standouts were first baseman Rick Saggese and catcher John Shea.

Andover Gold, 7-5

Mike Famiglietti earned the pitching victory with 6-1/3 innings of strong five-hit relief at Andover High, as AG moved to a semifinal meeting with Andover Blue by eliminating the Reading Rockets.

Reading jumped ahead 2-0 in the top of the first, but missed out on more by leaving the bases loaded.

Gold came right back in the home half to tie it. Mike Sullivan led with a long triple, and when the Rockets overthrew the cutoff man the fleet Gold leadoff batter continued home. Famiglietti drew a one-out walk, stole second, and raced across with the tying run on John Shea's single. Shea stole second and Rick Mendez walked, but that's where the rally ended.

AG moved ahead 4-2 in the second, Sullivan lashing an RBI single and Sam McClellan scoring an unearned run after reaching on an error.

The clubs traded third-inning runs, Gold produced when Shea's sacrifice fly plated Famiglietti who reached on an outfield error.

Reading notched singles runs in the fourth and fifth to pull even, 5-5, but

Andover Gold in playoffs

Gold countered with the winning run in the bottom of the fifth and a pad run in the sixth.

John Shea drew a one-out walk in the fifth, Rick Saggese singled, Matt Marvin walked to load the bases, and Tom Tanin walked to force home a run.

In the sixth Todd Murray singled and eventually crossed after three more free passes to Andy Brown, Shea and Saggese (RBI).

Famiglietti retired the Rockets 1-2-3 in the seventh to seal it.

McClellan contributed a hit for AG, while defensive standouts in the errorless effort were outfielder Rick Mendez (three putouts) and outfielder-second baseman Andy Brown. Andover Gold, 5-4

Gold nudged previously-undefeated defending league champ Blue in a well-attended game called after five innings because of darkness.

Matt Marvin won his second playoff game, allowing just four singles once again and whiffing four. He kept things interesting, however, by issuing 10 walks.

Justin Hesenius was the losing hurler for the first time in a season that included freshman, varsity and Pony League ball, tossing a five-hitter, walking five and fanning six. He was victimized by inconsistent defensive play.

Gold took a 2-0 first-inning lead. Mike Sullivan dumped a double down the leftfield line, was sacrificed to third by Dan Hansberry, and scored on a throwing error. Mike Famiglietti then singled, John Shea reached on a third-strike wild pitch, Rick Saggese walked to load the bases, and Marvin walked to force home Famiglietti.

The Blue got one back in the bottom of the second, after AG left men at second and third in the top of the stanza. Steve Shepard and Matt Walcott walked, and Andy Novelline ripped an RBI single. Marvin settled down to strike out the next two batters, however, and retire the third on a pop to shortstop Sullivan.

Rick Saggese doubled and Andy Brown singled to open the Gold third, but Hesenius worked free on an infield grounder and two strikeouts.

Blue inched ahead 3-2 in the bottom of the third, parlaying a throwing error and five walks to Toby Guzowski, Shepard, Wolcott, Novelline and Paul Allard.

Sullivan opened the AG fourth with a walk and stolen bases. Mike Famiglietti tied it with an RBI double, John Shea reached on an error, and Gold took a 5-3 lead when Andy Brown's two-out flyball to rightfield was mis-played.

Marvin then walked and Rick Mendez reached on Blue's third error of the inning, but Gold was unable to add to its lead.

In the bottom of the fifth Wolcott singled, Novelline singled, Chris Lembo walked to load the bases, and John Nelkin's infield out plated Wolcott.

Rick Saggese then snapped up a sharp grounder and touched first for the final out of the game, the umpires calling it because of darkness.

Andover Gold in playoffs for fourth time

Famiglietti finished 2-for-4 and Sullivan scored twice for the winners, while Novelline was 2-for-2 for Blue.

Defensive standouts were second baseman Dan Hansberry (four putouts, one assist) and first baseman Saggese for Gold, Hansberry ranging far into rightfield to run down a fifth-inning pop-up by Paul Allard.

Allard, at catcher, made a fine running grab in front of the Gold bench to end the first.

Championship Series Methuen, 3-2

A brilliant performance by Mike Famiglietti, who ended the season 3-3, went unrewarded as the league champs scored three unearned runs in the third and then held on for the victory.

Famiglietti permitted just four hits, struck out five and walked only one.

Winning hurler Paul Tridenti also tossed a strong game, holding Gold hitless until the fifth and finishing with a six-hitter, four strikeouts and two walks.

Methuen did all its damage in the third, getting only three other baserunners aboard in the game.

A one-out throwing error put Famiglietti in a hole. Bob Fyrer then looped an opposite-field single to right, Mike Kobrenski singled home the first run, and Dan Salois ripped what proved to be a game-winning two-run double down the leftfield line.

Salois' two-bagger was one of only two balls hit solidly off Famiglietti all day.

Gold managed only three baserunners in the first four innings, John Shea leading the second with a walk and Pat Walsh (error) joining Mike Sullivan (walk) to create a minor threat in the fourth.

AG pulled within a run in the fifth on two Methuen infield errors and singles by Bob Daley, Todd Murray and Matt Marvin (RBI).

Gold threatened in the sixth as Dan Hansberry drilled a leadoff single to rightfield, took second on Famiglietti's bunt, but was gunned down at home when Rick Saggese singled to center and Dan Salois fired a perfect strike to the plate to cut down the potential tying run.

In the seventh Andy Brown looped a lead-off single to left-centerfield, stole second, and Tom Tanin was hit in the shoulder with a pitch. The bid died, however, when Tridenti retired the next two batters on a pop to second base and game-ending strikeout.

Defensively, Dan Hansberry made a spectacular diving catch of a line drive at second base, Tom Tanin contributed a nice grab in leftfield, Tom Boutieria had two excellent catches in rightfield, and Rick Saggese played well at first.

Methuen, 10-9

The champs pulled ahead for good with three runs in the top of the sixth, the lead changing hands four times in the season's final game.

Pat Walsh started and pitched four strong innings for Gold. He was relieved in Methuen's five-run fifth by Matt Marvin, who deserved a better fate after being victimized by poor fielding support.

Three Gold infield errors in the first allowed Methuen to jump ahead, 2-0, although the visitors also left the bases loaded.

AG bounced right back with four runs, the keys a leadoff double by Mike Sullivan, singles by Dan Hansberry and Rick Saggese, a walk to Mike Famiglietti and a suicide squeeze bunt by Andy Brown.

It remained 4-2 until the fifth as rival pitchers Walsh and Dan Salois both settled down.

Methuen struck for five runs in the top of the fifth to take a 7-4 lead, but Gold retaliated with five of its own in the bottom of the inning.

With one out Sullivan tripled to leftfield and scored on a wild pitch. The next four runs came as a result of two Methuen errors and consecutive walks to Bob Daley, Mike Famiglietti, John Shea, Rick Saggese (RBI) and Matt Marvin (RBI).

Bob Fyrer came on and shut the door for Methuen, while the beginning of the end came for Gold when Fyrer opened the sixth by reached on a third strike wild pitch. Marvin retired the next two batters, walked a man, and had two strikes on Brian Hamman before he bounced an RBI single into rightfield to make it 9-8.

Marvin again had two strikes on Luke Vercellini before getting him to stroke an infield grounder. The throw to first went astray, however, as the tying and winning runs crossed for Methuen. Gold's final bid of the season came in the bottom of the seventh, Mike Famiglietti drawing a one-out walk and John Shea slapping a two-strike single to leftfield.

Fryer then bore down to end the game on two infield pops, the second which he caught himself over-the-shoulder behind the mound.

Sullivan doubled and tripled to spark the Gold offense.

Although the overall defensive effort was weak, Famiglietti played another solid game at third base as he handled five chances flawlessly.

Methuen and Gold met five times during the season, AG winning the first game 3-0 before Methuen reeled off four consecutive one-run victories (3-2, 9-8, 3-2 and 10-9).

Board stays clear of library issue

and the American Civil Liberties Union has threatened to sue the town over the children's rights.

Monday night, Gerald Palmer, of 8 Karlton Circle, petitioned selectmen to get involved in the controversy and suspend the restriction until the Library Board of Trustees has a chance to decide on the matter at its Sept. 12 meeting.

"What we're looking for right now from the selectmen...is to suspend the restrictions as they now exist for a trial period," Mr. Palmer said.

"It would allow the students to go into their own library and use it just like anybody else," Mr. Palmer said. "Free and equal access to the library without any restriction imposed on them as a group.

"It would also avoid a possible unnecessary cost if some parents and kids (choose to pursue) litigation," Mr. Palmer said.

Mr. Palmer quoted Massachusetts laws and American Library Association policy, which he said support the free access.

But Selectman Gerald Silverman recommended against any action by his fellow board members.

"I would be against any action by this board," Mr. Silverman said.

The trustees were appointed and it would be inappropriate for the selectmen to usurp the trustees' responsibilities, he said.

Mr. Silverman also questioned the interpretation of the word "access," and said that with an adult the children have access.

"It may come down to the legal interpretation as to what is access," Mr. Silverman said.

Mr. Silverman said he had heard nothing but support for the policy as it stands.

"Every phone call I've had on the library has taken the other viewpoint," Mr. Silverman told Mr. Palmer.

"My feeling is access is there and I would not want to, in any way usurp the power of the trustees at this time," Mr. Silverman said.

Selectman Charles Wesson agreed with Mr. Silverman. He also questioned Mr. Palmer on whether any safety issues were involved with allowing children on the upper levels of the library and in regard to them using the elevators.

Mr. Palmer said he was unaware of any safety issues and said any such questions should be directed to architects and engineers.

Selectmen and other town officials are involved with the library issue, according to Mr. Wesson, and he asked Mr. Palmer to allow some time for the various people involved, the trustees and the town attorney among them, to do the necessary research.

"We've got a policy that's been in existence for 20 years," Mr. Wesson said.

"Until you brought it to our attention...I don't think a lot of people in town knew such a rule existed," Chairman James Barenboim said to Mr. Palmer.

"I would ask you to be patient," and wait until September, Mr. Barenboim said.

It's show time for eighth season at the Collins Center

In contributions from patrons of the Collins Center.

In less than six weeks, acting director Jared Clark and newly hired program director Bonnie Szarzynski have combined 15 performances for its eighth season with appeal to a wide range of tastes. The number of performances is down two from last year, but a wider range of artists and reduced ticket prices are designed to increase the appeal and accessibility of the Collins Center to the community, said Ms. Szarzynski.

Last year a season ticket cost $461 for one of the best seats in the house. This year the same seat all season long will cost $395, said Ms. Szarzynski. A season ticket for an orchestra seat will cost $294 and $182 for a mezzanine seat.

Opening night will feature Neil Sadaka and some returning favorites, including Roberta Peters, Glen Campbell and Mel Torme.

For the first time, the center will collaborate with WCRB, a classical radio station in Boston, which is sponsoring a classical music series of five performances. Included in this series will be the Vienna Choir Boys.

The eighth season will come to a close with a special performance, which isn't included in the season tickets. Marvin Hamlisch, Pulitzer Prize winning composer who wrote the music for "A Chorus Line," will be the featured performer for the black tie fund raising event.

Local man uses new timer in triathlon

Timothy Adams didn't use state-of-the-art technology to finish the Bay State Triathlon in Medford last month, but the organizers of the race did.

Mr. Adams, of 3 Old South Lane, completed the one-mile swim, 42.5-mile bike ride and 10-mile run in four hours, 15 minutes and 33 seconds. But Mr. Adams was just one of hundreds of competitors the organizers of the race had to keep track of.

Tracking the individual times in each part of the race can be tough for organizers. But this race used a new technology developed right in Topsfield that may revolutionize the scoring systems used in many such sporting events around the world.

The Timing Tag Identification System, made by American Sports Timing Systems Inc., uses a radio transmitter, antenna and computer to keep track of each competitor's time and position.

"The device identifies who it is and when he went by and the computer essentially takes care of the rest," said John Morgan Jr., president of ASTS.

The system has already been used in the Ironman Triathlon and the Los Angeles Marathon and may be used in next year's Boston Marathon. It is most useful in races, like biking competitions, where several competitors might be crossing the line at once, according to Mr. Morgan.

"Identification is very hard in a larger event," he said.

In July's Bay State Triathlon, the system was used only in the bicycle portion of the race.

Racers were required to pedal nine laps around a loop course.

The matchbook size transmitters, pre-programmed with each racer's name, number and other personal data, were strapped or taped to their bikes and used to count the laps that had been completed.

"It's like a little square magnet,"

Mr. Adams said. "You taped it on the front fork of your bike."

Mr. Adams said the time tag didn't hinder him at all, but it didn't help him any either.

He was glad the Bay State race used both the old and new methods of scoring.

The old method of lap counting involves having volunteers on the side of the course who are assigned approximately 20 racers each. The racer calls out his or her number as he or she passes the scorer and the scorer calls back how many laps the racer has completed.

Mr. Adams said he still prefers the primitive method, but he understands the usefulness of the time tags.

"It helped the people that organized the thing," he said.

The Time Tag System is still being refined, but Mr. Morgan is satisfied with its success.

The cost of the system is still prohibitive for smaller races. One tag costs about $35, according to information supplied by the company.

The market targeted so far has been large events or race organizers who might be able to re-use the system for several events.

Mrs. Amore at the Audiometer and the tiny canal hearing aid.

Amore Hearing Aid Consultants

This tiny, flesh colored plug, no bigger than a toothpaste tube cap, can change the quality of a person's life. "This is the 'canal' hearing aid," said Theresa Manzi Amore, owner of Amore Hearing Consultants of Lawrence. The device is all but lost in her palm. "It fits into the ear canal and is virtually undetectable. Former President Reagan wears one in each ear."

Mrs. Amore deals with small, everyday miracles like the canal aid and the slightly larger "all in the ear" model, completely contained in the ear. In her 34 years in the field, she has witnessed a revolution, both in hearing aid technology and in the public's attitude toward hearing loss.

"When I started out it was considered a catastrophe," she said. "People are now better educated about hearing loss."

In 1955, when Mrs. Amore began her work, the standard hearing aid was a cumbersome affair connected to a ear-carried battery pack. Now, six out of ten patients wear the "all in the ear"; others wear canal aids, aids with behind the ear attachments or eyeglass models. The proper aid for a person, Mrs. Amore feels, depends largely upon the degree and type of hearing loss.

Mrs. Amore works with all ages and welcomes Medicaid patients. To maintain her board certification and keep ahead in her field she must take courses every year.

Although as a hearing aid consultant she tests hearing, prescribes, fits and repairs aids, Mrs. Amore emphasizes that her skills complement those of medical specialists - they do not replace them. She believes that patients who suspect hearing loss should see a competent specialist.

Amore Hearing Aid Consultants, 101 Amesbury St., Lawrence, is open Mon., Tues., Thurs. and Fri. 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wed. and Sat. 9 a.m. to noon. Call 682-4730 for an appointment. Mrs. Amore also has an office in Haverhill at 3 Washington Square. For an appointment in her Haverhill office, call 372-4851. R.C. Bernal gence. However, being this was his first offense, I find his sentence and the article misleading and unfair.

I believe that rape is a seriously punishable crime that unfortunately results in an abundance of acquittals. I, therefore, wish this article was more solidly and less implicatively written. I am weary of journalistic writing as a source of information. I am also weary of such a strong sentence to a young first offender, then again, the Supreme Court acquitted Oliver North, so what's one supposed to think.

IRS employees donated blood in recent drive

IRS employees donated more than 180 pints of blood at the Andover Service Center. Elizabeth Young of Chelmsford and Theresa Gilhooly of Lawrence, both nurses at the facility, organized this event for the Red Cross. Mary Jo Bassilakis of Andover, a secretary at the center, assisted them.

The Andover Service Center has satellite offices in Methuen and Fitchburg. All three facilities operate several blood drives a year. The American Red Cross has honored the service center employees with several awards for their outstanding support.

Red Cross spokesperson Kim Cronin said that the service center's health staff does an outstanding job. She uses them as an example when promoting the program with other companies. "The Andover Service Center is one of my favorite blood drives. The employees are such a giving group of people. Even the IRS retirees come to help," she said.

The center's next blood drive is scheduled for September when they hope to break their donation record for the most amount of blood given in a year.

Water: To sell or not to sell

for the interbasin transfer permit, but such a transfer has never been allowed on an ongoing basis in Massachusetts and water resource managers are not anxious to set a precedent, according to Ralph Goodno, executive director of the Merrimack River Watershed Council.

"In short, they are a bad idea and set a dangerous precedent," Mr. Goodno said.

"This is a net loss of water to the basin because that water will never be recycled back into our watershed," he said.

North Reading's problems

Andover selling water to North Reading is not a new concept, according to Stephen Daly, North Reading's town administrator.

"North Reading has been buying water from Andover since 1955," Mr. Daly said this week.

His town has not had a sufficient water supply since 1974 and has been receiving Andover water on a regular basis since it lost a major well to contamination in 1978, according to Mr. Daly.

In 1978 the Stickney Well, located near the intersection of Interstate 93 and Concord Road, was found to be contaminated with chemical solvents, according to the town administrator.

"It was tied to a spill at a former General Electric facility in that area," Mr. Daly said.

Although North Reading is still trying to clean up that well with hopes of re-opening it, Bob McQuade, Andover Department of Public Works director, said he is not optimistic that will happen.

"They're still looking into it. They identified the contaminants," Mr. McQuade said. "They haven't come up with a way to treat it."

North Reading tried drilling new wells, but to no avail, according to Mr. Daly.

"We've drilled more than 300 test wells in town," Mr. Daly said, "None of what we found was in sufficient quantities to justify building the facility to treat the water so it was of drinkable quality."

The town also looked at taking water from the Ipswich River but was caught in a "catch 22" situation, according to Mr. Daly.

The state Water Resources Act, enacted in the mid 1980s, froze the amount of water the town could take from the Ipswich River basin at then current levels. The amount was judged by how much water had been taken during a sample three-year period.

Because the Stickney Well had been shut down during the three-year period, North Reading was limited to the amount that had been taken by its remaining wells.

Even if North Reading were allowed to take water from the Ipswich River, there's not much water left to take.

A recent Army Corps of Engineer report on the Ipswich River stated that, at times, portions of the river near Wilmington and North Reading actually flow backward because of the amount of water being taken out of it, according to Mr. Daly.

Mr. Goodno agreed.

"There are times when that river has no water in it at all," he said.

Mr. Goodno supports Andover continuing to supply water to North Reading on an emergency basis, but said they should institute mandatory conservation measures, work on renovation of existing ground water wells and establish growth management strategies.

During the past decade, North Reading has distributed water conservation devices for use on a voluntary basis, according to Mr. Daly.

"Voluntary watering bans have kept us within range of our system with what we buy from Andover," he said Tuesday. "Two weeks ago we went into a mandatory ban because we couldn't keep up."

The town has enacted a zoning bylaw that calls for an aquifer protection district and another to control underground storage of hazardous and flammable materials, according to Mr. Daly.

But the administrator said North Reading has a right to "grow into the future," and he is against any suggestion that the town should implement growth-control measures.

"That's unrealistic. It's unfair," Mr. Daly said.

A balance is needed for economic vitality and for protection of local natural resources, according to Mr. Daly.

"They've looked at every possible source," Mr. McQuade said of North Reading officials.

What they want

The eight-inch pipe currently being used to supply water to North Reading has a capacity for delivering approximately 300,000 gallons of water per day. North Reading would like to have access to .5 million gallons a day (mgd) now, with the potential to take up to 1.5 mgd by the year 2020.

To build a pipe system that could handle that volume would be a significant capital investment for North Reading and paying for it could take 20 years. It wouldn't be worth building for only a five- or 10-year contract, or if Andover were going to limit that town to less than the 1.5 mgd it has been projected North Reading will need.

Andover's water treatment facility can process 24 mgd and the town currently uses an average of just 6 mgd. Mr. McQuade expects to have plenty of surplus capacity well past the year 2020.

At Town Meeting in June, Andover residents approved allowing selectmen to enter into a contract with North Reading, but several residents expressed concern over the long-term commitment and said they would favor a five- or 10-year contract rather than anything longer.

Long term effects

Although the amount of water North Reading would use is relatively small, according to Mr. Goodno, it is not limited by either the warrant article passed by Andover residents or by North Reading's application to the DEP. It also sets a bad precedent, he said.

Margaret Pustell, of 85 Porter Road, also questions the long-range danger of the interbasin transfer, in her recent letter to the Townsman.

"If Massachusetts Communities downstream are busy selling Merrimack water, there will be no incentive for New Hampshire communities to be good neighbors and limit their use of the river water," Ms. Pustell said.

Boston already has plans to take water from the Merrimack River at Lowell during the spring run off to augment its water supply, according to Mr. McQuade. Ms. Pustell alleges that the only thing that has held up Boston's plan so far is its own lack of conservation efforts and the lack of a precedent interbasin transfer.

The New Hampshire state legislature last year also gave permission to a private water works to take 30 mgd from the Merrimack River to sell to the city of Nashua, according to Mr. G.

Waste water treatment facilities might also feel the effects of a diminished river flow, according to Mr. Goodno.

Treatment plants, such as the Greater Lawrence Sanitary District in North Andover, which handles Andover's waste water, control releases of chemically treated water in calculated doses so as not to pollute the Merrimack water.

While awaiting the DEP decision, Mr. Stapczynski is continuing to negotiate details of the pending contract.

It could be December or January before a decision is made on the interbasin transfer, according to Peter O'Neill, a spokesman for the Department of Environmental Management.

The application is currently being studied by various state environmental groups. If the application is complete, it will probably be accepted at a Massachusetts Water Resource Commission meeting on Sept. 10.

The MWRC will then have 60 days to hold two public hearings. Then the state has 60 days to make a ruling.
